

Lifeloc Launches first Comprehensive E-Learning System for Breath Alcohol Technician (BAT) Certification

December, 2010, Denver, Colorado - Lifeloc Technologies (www.lifeloc.com), a leading provider of professional breath alcohol testers (breathalyzers) and alcohol training programs for law enforcement, corrections, DOT and the Workplace announced the launch of its new web-based Learning Management System and the immediate availability of its online Breath Alcohol Technician (BAT) Certification course. The system is available to individuals seeking to earn certification, organizations interested in centralizing their BAT training program, and professional BAT trainers. Time savings over conventional course structures can be as high as 50%. Cost savings are even greater.

BAT candidates will receive the industry's most comprehensive procedural training, delivered online through an entirely self-paced program. The course features high definition video, audio narration, and animation. Online content includes downloadable course materials, free access to learning and reference resources, and an e-mail notification service. Course content was developed by a team of experienced certified breath alcohol trainers. The course meets and exceeds SCORM standards commonly used in regulated industries to maximize training effectiveness.

Amy Evans, Lifeloc Training Development Manager commented, "Lifeloc's online BAT training is superior because it was designed specifically for users in highly regulated environments such as drug and alcohol testing. Beyond offering highly cost effective online BAT training, all course content remains fully accessible to users for the life of their certificates. Additionally, all reference materials are automatically updated online by Lifeloc as DOT regulations change."

BAT Instructors in larger corporations and TPAs can use the system for virtual training of their students and to monitor progress. Each graduate has their own user profile and records account which can be administered by the instructor or the student.

Said Barry Knott, President of Lifeloc, "We take our responsibility very seriously to provide the highest quality of training and continuing support to our customers. Procedural compliance and BAT qualification doesn't end when the course does. We want our graduates to be of the highest caliber for the full five years of their certificates. "

View details and a demonstration visit Lifeloc's web-based training page.

(Continued)

To learn more and schedule training contact Lifeloc Technologies, Inc 800.722.4872
www.lifeloc.com
training@lifeloc.com

To learn more about Lifeloc's web-based BAT training, visit the web page that offers a free product demonstration, including a sample video. For pricing information, corporate and branded accounts, and further information, email training@lifeloc.com or call 1-800-722-4872.

About Lifeloc Technologies

For more than 25 years Lifeloc Technologies, Inc. has served the law enforcement, corrections and Workplace communities as a leading global manufacturer of professional breath alcohol testers. Lifeloc products, proudly manufactured and serviced in the USA, are recognized worldwide for their ease-of-use, accuracy and reliability. Visit www.lifeloc.com or call 1-800-722-4872.

Contact:

John Rhoades

Lifeloc Technologies, Inc.

www.lifeloc.com

303-431-9500