

Breathalyzer Manufacturer Lifeloc Technologies Announces Nationwide Network for Training and Certification for Employer Alcohol and Drug Testing

Well-Known Breathalyzer manufacturer offers most comprehensive nationwide network for on-site training and certification, enabling employers to reduce cost and enhance safety in the workplace.

Wheat Ridge, CO (PRWeb) March 14, 2007 -- Leading breathalyzer manufacturer Lifeloc Technologies (www.lifeloc.com) has announced its nationwide training and certification program for employer alcohol and drug testing. For over 20 years Lifeloc Technologies has provided alcohol testing equipment and supplies to its clients, along with unparalleled customer service, training and the expert guidance needed to establish an efficient, accurate and valid testing program.

As the only entity offering nationwide training and certification for all types of substance abuse testing programs, breathalyzer manufacturer Lifeloc Technologies also provides consultative services to guide employers. While training can be conducted for operators and program administrators, it can also be used to set up instructors within the company, making the program self-sustaining.

All training can be done at the employer's location, eliminating the need to send employees to costly off-site programs. Company testing can also lower costs as it replaces the referral of these services to an outside provider. In the event of an accident, on-site testing saves money and allows the company more control. For example, the subject employee can be tested immediately without being required to waste time traveling across town accompanied by a supervisor, a practice that can generate costs as much as 100 times higher than the cost of in-house testing.

An important benefit of in-house employer alcohol and drug testing programs is that they allow focus on deterrence and prevention, as opposed to reactively "placing blame". As a result, accidents, injury, confrontations and liability can be reduced by taking a preventative approach.

The Lifeloc training network is the expert resource for alcohol testing and also provides the world's best alcohol testing equipment. As a one-stop shop, the Lifeloc network offers tremendous convenience, covering all aspects of employer alcohol and drug testing.
