

Lifeloc Technologies to Purchase Corporate Headquarters in Wheat Ridge, Colorado

Lifeloc Technologies will acquire its currently leased facilities in Wheat Ridge, Colorado to secure additional space for anticipated growth.

Lifeloc Technologies (OTC: LCTC), a leader in the manufacture of professional breathalyzers for law enforcement and workplace testing announced today that it has entered into an agreement to purchase its currently leased premises in Wheat Ridge, Colorado.

Barry Knott, president of Lifeloc commented that, "the building purchase assures us space for continued growth and provides long term savings over leasing. The location reinforces our commitment to Jefferson County, Colorado as a great place to do business."

Mayor of Wheat Ridge, Joyce Jay commented, "We are pleased to see a manufacturer with such great growth potential make Wheat Ridge its permanent home. Our hope is that Lifeloc's move will show other employers that with its supportive business policies and easy access to the mountains and downtown Denver, Wheat Ridge is an excellent location for expansion."

The 22,000 square foot building houses Lifeloc administration, marketing, engineering and manufacturing. With the anticipated 2016 opening of the new FasTracks commuter rail transit line from downtown Denver to Wheat Ridge, Lifeloc employees will have additional great transportation options.

The building is being purchased from Ward West Properties, of Mead Colorado. Lifeloc anticipates retaining the tenants currently leasing space in the building.
